

Church's Chicken Family Welcomes Five New Franchisees During Town Hall Meeting

2006-07-05

New Restaurants Slated to Open around the U.S.

The Church's Chicken family grows once again, as four new franchisees head to Atlanta to be awarded development agreements to open over ten new Church's restaurants within the next few years. Atlanta-based Church's Chicken will officially welcome the new franchisees from the states of Pennsylvania, Arkansas and Texas during a corporate town hall meeting at the company's Atlanta headquarters.

Church's executives will be on hand to officially welcome the following franchisees during a special signing ceremony to be held during the meeting:

- Atiqul Islam and Amanul Syed - Alamo Group of Investment (Houston)
- Maliha Rahmani and Palwinder Bains - MR Corporation (Philadelphia)
- Fazal Khaliq - BF Zak Enterprises (Waxahachie, TX)
- Lavon Crawford - Crossroads Foods, Inc. (Jonesboro, AR)

"Our ongoing strategy to increase Church's market share in the Chicken QSR sector is quite simple: more Church's, better Church's," says Doug Pendergast, Executive Vice President and Chief Franchise Officer. "We're pleased to welcome this latest group of candidates, as we realize our goal of expanding the Church's franchise system with passionate, experienced franchisees who are committed to growth."

Earlier this year, the Church's franchise development team announced a goal of signing 150 new restaurant agreements in the U.S. this year, and they are well on their way. More than 75 new restaurant options have been awarded in the US so far this year.
