

Myholiday.Com Offers The Concept Of 'No Cure, No Pay' For Holiday Homeowners

2007-07-24

MyHoliday.com announces the launch of the first and only on-line holiday home rental site to truly dispense with upfront fees for listings.

Instead of fees, MyHoliday.com offers a revolutionary concept of 'No cure, no pay.' Home owners and rental agencies list their properties for free, and pay only a small 2 euros fee for each inquiry from potential renters. Compare this efficient new system to the current practice in which owners must choose from dozens or even hundreds of online rental sites that require upfront payments of up to 240 euros per year.

Holiday renters benefit too. MyHoliday.com uses the latest techniques in interface design and booking systems to give renters quick access to a multitude of photographs and information regarding over 40,000 holiday rentals in 21 countries. The renters have the option of booking online or speaking directly to owners. This way, renters have a much better chance of finding the perfect holiday cottage, townhouse, villa or apartment.

ABOUT THE COMPANY

MyHoliday.com is the result of several years of development by a team of specialists with a combined total of 15 years in designing internet-based applications and sites for travel companies and the holiday rental industry, including spain-holiday.com, one of the most successful sites specializing in Spanish holiday homes. They've used our knowledge of flight booking systems and enterprise-wide interface design to give MyHoliday.com the ability to easily handle the 40,000 properties we currently list, and many more to come.

CEO, Claus Sorensen, put it this way: 'Whether you are the owner of a single villa or part of a company managing thousands of cottages, town houses and apartments, our system will let you get your property online in minutes. Between this ease of use and our new pricing system, we expect to be listing over 100,000 properties by this time next year.'
