

Burger King Corp. Selects MICROS RES 4.0 for All Company-owned Restaurants in the United States

2008-07-08

MICROS Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ:MCRS) , a leading provider of information technology solutions to the hospitality and retail industries, is pleased to announce that Burger King Corp. has selected the MICROS RES 4.0 Point-of-Sale (POS) solution for all of its approximate 800 company-owned restaurants in the United States.

The deployment is scheduled to begin in Atlanta, GA in the summer of 2008, with 50 locations. The remaining company-owned restaurants will be completed over the next two years.

In addition to POS, Burger King Corp. will procure MICROS implementation services for training, installation and go-live support. In the future, Burger King Corp. also plans to utilize the MICROS Help Desk and hardware services.

After extensively evaluating multiple POS solutions, Burger King Corp. selected the entire suite of MICROS products. MICROS offers Burger King Corp. a fully integrated solution with enterprise management tools to control restaurant level databases for both POS and back-office applications. With MICROS RES 4.0, Burger King Corp. is able to apply enhanced consistency to its restaurants' menus and pricing. It will also allow the Company to nimbly respond to the needs of local restaurant markets.

"Upon deciding to standardize on a POS solution across our company-owned locations in the United States, our team recommended MICROS as the right POS system for our restaurants. They cited their service and support capabilities as key differentiators," stated Raj Rawal, Senior Vice President and Chief Information Officer for Burger King Corp. "We are impressed with the functionality of RES 4.0, as well as MICROS's ability to quickly assimilate and integrate to our specific operational environment."

"Burger King Corp.'s selection of MICROS as its exclusive POS provider for company-owned sites in the United States further validates our viability to address the operational elements particular to the quick service market," stated Thomas Moran, Vice President, Restaurant Sales and Strategies for MICROS Systems Inc. "Through our new partnership with Burger King Corp., we were able to tailor MICROS RES 4.0 to meet its specific requirements. We look forward to continued support of Burger King Corp.'s technology needs and that of its franchisees to help Burger King Corp. maintain its position as one of the leading burger chains in the world."
